SIXTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

ENCOURAGED by fifteen years of successful effort, we enter upon the sixteenth year of our work. As the merchant, at stated intervals, counts up his profits and losses; takes account of his stock, and from the entries in his ledger calculates the security of his position in the world of business, so we lay before you the record of our labor, since the last annual report, that from the results you may judge how we stand, what we have been doing, and whether we are justified in counting this year also, as one of success.

Jeremy Taylor relates a Bohemian legend of St. Wenceslaus who went barefoot one winter night over the sharp and pointed surface of snow and ice, to his devotions in a distant church. His servant in trying to imitate his master, faltered over the rough road, until the saint bade him step in the footsteps which his feet should mark for him, and through obedience to this command, the servant found it safe and easy to follow his leader. "In the same manner," says the good Bishop, in application of the legend," does the blessed Jesus; for since our way is troublesome, obscure, full of objection and danger, apt to be mistaken, and to affright our industry, He commands us to mark his footsteps, to tread where His feet have stood, and not only invites us forward by the argument of his example, but He hath trodden down much of the difficulty, and made the way easier and fit for our feet."

The attempt to follow in the foot-prints of our Saviour, led to the establishment of this "Home for Destitute Children," and our experience has verified the truth of the preacher's application; for the way has been made the easier for us by consciousness that we are called to this work "by the argument of his example," and that he has helped us, and led us on thus far in its accomplishment.

We ask that your sympathy in our work, may lend you patience to bear with us as we enter into the prosaic, but necessary details and statistics of our report.

There are at present five hundred children under the care of this Association. Of these one hundred are now in the

HOME FOR DESTITUTE CHILDREN, BUTLER ST.

As the great Ridgewood Reservoir is the supply from which, through various pipes like arteries, the water is led to every street, through the extended length and breadth of our city; so in this "Home" are gathered the supplies to be distributed through every branch and department of our work.

This "Home" is in a flourishing condition, under the care of our new matron, whose long experience in similar Institutions, eminently fits her for her situation in this. The children are healthy, and seem to be happy, and we think they can scarcely regard the name Home as a misnomer, while receiving under its roof, such motherly care and attention to their wants. About seventy-five of these children attend school daily in the chapel. The teacher at present employed, was formerly in charge of the Industrial School, at one time established for the benefit of colored children, where her warm piety, and her love for the young commended her to our attention. We endeavor to impress upon the teachers in this school the necessity of religious instruction, and our desire that they should ingratiate themselves in the affection of the children, and win their confidence, so that these little ones may, like those in our own home circles, have those around them to whom they will freely impart their childish wants, and troubles, and joys.

Both matron and teacher may thus by wise counsel, and good advice, help greatly to form the character, and influence the future of these little waifs, some of whom are now for the first time under christian direction. By line upon line, and precept upon precept given in a gentle, loving, motherly way, they may be led to Jesus, and then, when the trials of their after life shall come, they will remember how they have been taught, that "God is a very present help in trouble." Two beautiful little boys were brought to the ladies in executive meeting, one day. One of them, a restless child, began to amuse himself by turning over the leaves of the large Bible upon the table.

"Do you know what book that is?" inquired one of the ladies. "The Bible!" promptly answered the child.

"Do you know what it is about; does your mother ever read it aloud to you?" "No!" quite as promptly replied the elder boy.

We looked into the beautiful blue eyes of the child, shaded by long brown lashes, and at his delicate, almost girlish face, and wondered how such as he, could go out into this stormy world, without a knowledge of God. Still more did we wonder how any mother could have the gift of such a boy, and never point him to the love of our heavenly Father. Calling our Institution a Home for Destitute Children, we believe that such as these are especially the objects of our work, those who, to the need of physical care, add also that greater claim to our pity, a total destitution of all religious training at home, all knowledge of God as their Father and Christ as their Saviour.

It may not be out of place to insert here a few incidents to show the influence exerted upon the children at the Home in the familiar daily intercourse between teacher and taught, out of school hours.

Says the teacher: "As I sat in the boys' dormitory waiting for them to get in bed, one of the larger boys began to tease another, who immediately retorted, and throwing off his jacket doubled up his fists, but in an instant he dropped his hands, and threw himself on his knees to pray. I leaned over him and whispered "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us."

"On another occasion" continues the same teacher," one of the boys said, "Oh dear, I wish I was dead!" "Why, my child! I exclaimed, you should'nt talk so. Do you think you would go to heaven, if you died?" "No," was the reply, "I don't think so. I think that's just the reason why I live, because I ain't good enough to go to heaven, and God don't want me to go to the other place." In the morning I had read these words, "As I live, saith the Lord, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked," and this childlike trust had been given to the Scripture as I read it."

One of the boys who had gone from the Home to the West, wrote back to the playmates he had left, as follows: "I have got a good home, I have a horse, a pistol, a good bed, and plenty to eat. I like it out here very much. We have chickens and mules, and I am to have a little pig." "After the reception of this letter," says the teacher," the children were wild with excitement to go West, and one of the boys said: "If I had as many things as Johnny has, I wouldn't take the time to write back to the Home!" Another little fellow with a more keen sense of right, spoke up at once, "Is that the way you'd do? Then I think all the nice things might be taken away from yer!"

Says another teacher, "after reading and talking with the school about the all-seeing God, a little fellow came to me at recess, with an expression on his face which made me draw him close to me, and ask what he wanted to say. "Teacher, did not you tell us that God can see every thing, every single thing? "I did." "Well don't you believe I could hide my book where he couldn't see it?" He held up his spelling book before me. "No, I don't think you could." "I bet he couldn't find it if I was to eat it up!" We have no record of the answer given in reply, but we hope this young skeptic was pleasantly met in his investigation of the subject; for there is a similar inquiry recorded of Voltaire in his childhood, for which he received a severe whipping, "and thus," says his biographer, "he became an infidel." These few incidents will serve, as we said before, to illustrate the familiar intercourse we desire to encourage between the children, and those who have them in charge.

The health of the children during the past year has been unusually good. This may be owing in some measure to the improvement, in the ventilation of the building, which we have attained after the expenditure of much money, and the failure of many experiments. We are gratified at the result of the test made by the Board of Health upon the purity of the air in the dormitories. They officially announced that the ventilation was good. They tested the air taken at night from the dormitories, and were well satisfied with the results. No deaths have occurred among the children, except in the nursery. Forty-eight cases of measles at one time obliged us to convert the school room into a hospital. We were very anxious as to the results, but under the skillful treatment of our physician they all recovered, and no serious consequences followed.

contains at present nineteen cribs, all occupied. These children are doing as well as we can expect them to, without a mother's constant care. They do not look as plump and rosy as do the little ones in your own nurseries, who receive the unremitting attention of nurse and mother, and to whose every cry the whole household yield a ready sympathy. You cannot expect that they should. We have done all that we could in placing over these, the most helpless in our charge, a most careful, competent, and untiring nursery committee, who have, with a zeal indicative of true Christian spirit, watched the health of these children. The matron has assisted the nurses through many a midnight vigil by their little cribs, and as far as has been possible, the suggestions of the physician for the improvement of this department have been carried out.

We cannot close our notice of the nursery without a grateful acknowledgment to Dr. Goodridge, the physician at the Home, for his watchfulness over these children. More especially do we owe him our thanks for his skillful treatment of a child, upon whom he performed a very difficult and dangerous operation. Several eminent surgeons and physicians were present, and they were united in bearing testimony to his skill on this occasion. The child is now running about the nursery in good health, and only somewhat paler from confinement to its crib.

During the past year we have enlarged our work by opening

A HOME FOR DESTITUTE COLORED CHILDREN.

We at present occupy a hired building on Dean St., near Troy Avenue. Mr. J. Carson Brevoort has generously given to the Association four lots of ground, extending from Dean St., to Bergen St., between Albany and Troy Avenues, to be used for the benefit of the colored people. We immediately opened negotiations for the purchase of a building formerly known as the "African Civilization Rooms," which was situated on two of these lots. This building will need some alteration, to fit it for a Home for colored children, but we hope to have all arrangements completed, so that we can occupy it for this purpose in May. The situation is particularly desirable for our purpose, as it is contiguous to a district school which the children can attend. The same rules and regulations which govern the Home in Butler St. will be extended to and observed in this, and the work here will be under the supervision of a committee of managers chosen from our Board. The matron of this Institution will be for the present, a white woman, but all other occupants of the building will be of the colored race. As this is the only public Institution in the City of Brooklyn for the poor of this people, we hope that our friends will come forward and help us to sustain it now, at its feeble opening, while it is struggling to maintain itself against the prejudice of the white and the ignorance of the colored race. We should like to have its existence and its object more thoroughly known among the people whom we desire to benefit. As they are not as accessible to this information through public print as more educated classes might be, we hope by alluding to this fact, that you will assist us to spread this knowledge among them, and also that you will co-operate with us in our efforts to improve this much neglected class of Destitute Children.

Of the schools under our charge

was the first established, and has thus far been the most flourishing. It has the names of one hundred and fifty eight scholars on the roll-book, but their attendance is very irregular. In this, as in the other schools belonging to the Association, reading, spelling, geography, and writing are taught, and the children have made some degree of proficiency in these studies. We think that parents are sometimes a little unreasonable in their expectation of the progress to be made by these scholars. They make no allowance for the fact, that the children in our own families with whom they compare them hear and catch so much from the studies of sister and brother, and the reading aloud of parents and friends that their minds become awakened, and they obtain a degree of almost intuitive perception, into subjects which are presented to these children in a new and unfamiliar light.

SCHOOL NO. 2, 88 EAST BALTIC ST.

This school has had much to contend against from the fact of its being held in a dull, gloomy building, with very little sunlight to impress the children pleasantly, and make them desire to spend their morning hours within its walls. An efficient corps of workers have however bravely battled against these impediments and they have secured a new and more attractive edifice, built almost expressly for this work, in which they propose to open their school in May. They number at present between eighty and ninety scholars, but they hope when they enter their new building on Fourth St., near the corner of Smith St., that with plenty of sunshine to enliven the little ones, and a new and efficient teacher, their numbers will rapidly increase.

SCHOOL NO. 3

is held in the chapel at the Home on Butler St., and is attended exclusively by the children living in the Home.

SCHOOL NO. 4, BERGEN ST., NEAR FLATBUSH AVENUE

was formerly known as the "Border Mission," and was established through the energy and Christian zeal of a few ladies. For some time they bore the burden of this school, exclusively themselves, and it was only when increase of numbers rendered it impossible for them to sustain it alone, that they applied for admission into this Association, under No. 5 of our by-laws. In December last, this school was admitted into our number. The names of the ladies connected with it were placed upon the list of Managers, and they with others were appointed a committee to take the school in charge. There are at present about eighty scholars in regular attendance, most of whom are of Swedish or German parentage. The school is held in a comfortable brick building, and promises to accomplish much good in this part of the city.

All the children gathered in these Industrial Schools are such as have no proper clothing in which to attend the District Schools; they would therefore remain without education and certainly without religious instruction, were they not gathered by the managers into these classes.

THE REPORTS OF BIBLE READERS AND VISITORS constantly reiterate the thanks of the parents for the food and clothes furnished to the scholars in these schools. We cannot picture to you more vividly the homes of this class of children than by giving extracts verbatim from the reports of Bible readers, presented at the regular meetings of the Board.

"I visited a family composed of father, mother, and six children. They were very destitute, for the father upon whom they depended had no work. After assisting them I invited the woman to attend the "mother's prayer meeting." She said that she had never been in such a place before, and seemed to be very much pleased. She knew very little about God, and had no Bible. I endeavored to point her to Christ. She promised that she would pray, and try to seek the Lord. She also said that she would attend the mother's prayer meeting every week.

"The families whom I visit are very destitute, and they constantly express to me their gratitude for the food and clothing which their children receive at the school.

"One woman sent her two little boys, and they told her that they had never had such nice soup before, or such nice, warm shoes and stockings.

"I found that one of our scholars had been very badly hurt by being kicked by a large boy. His mother earns a living by days work, but she could not leave the child, and they were in consequence very poor. I gave her an order for coal or food, which ever she chose.

"Another family upon whom I called were so poor that the two youngest of the six, were entirely without clothing. I succeeded in getting some flannel for them, and with the assistance of one of the managers, was enabled to clothe them nicely. I took three of them to the Industrial School, and four to Sunday-school. The father now attends prayer meeting every Tuesday evening. I asked the mother if amid such distressing poverty, she could still put her trust in God. She said that she could. She asked me to come often, and read and pray with her. She told me that her father was a Methodist minister in Ireland.

"A little boy had been absent from school for several days; I went to inquire the cause of his absence, and found that he had been burned. His mother was out at work, and his father coming home in a state of intoxication, burned the lid of the child's eye with a hot poker. Two brothers being absent from school, I went to see them, and found that their mother had been drinking, and was in jail."

"Have been visiting a Swedish family who have not been long in this country. Two of the children are now going to school. They speak very broken English. The mother said she did not know what she should do, were it not for the school; she is here among strangers without friends or money. Her husband is a sailor, and earns very little to support his family."

"Another poor woman living near expressed gratitude, for the assistance her children had received. She said the school was such a help to her, for there the children received the only comfortable meal through the day. Especially she prized it for the influence it had exerted over the children for good."

"While visiting in this neighborhood I caught the sound of little voices in an adjoining room. The children and their mother were singing together the hymns taught in the schools. After singing, the mother began to teach the children their lessons."

"We had a very interesting prayer meeting. A woman came through a very heavy rain to attend. She said she felt as if she must come to tell how the Lord had blessed her soul; that if it had not been for these meetings, she believed she would have groped her way along in the dark, and so have died in ignorance."

"Five Swedish children have come to school, all of whom, except the oldest girl, are unable to speak English. They seem intelligent, and anxious to learn. On Friday last the mother of three of these children came to school, and expressed to me her gratitude for the kindness shown her children; for the dinners daily given them, and for the undergarments they had received. She told her sad story in broken English, of recent sickness, and want of employment. What she said was confirmed to me afterwards, by a woman who lived in the same house, and who said that for timely help, she must have starved. As the tears rolled down this poor woman's cheeks, she again and again expressed her thanks for the kindness shown to her children."

I do not think that any words of mine could picture to you half so well this portion of our work, as these simple sketches, taken by those whom we employ to visit among the poor, to aid them in every possible way, and to gather their little ones in the schools.

Many interesting letters have been received from those who have taken children from the Home into their families. These letters give encouraging accounts of the improvement and progress of these children, and of their endeavors to lead good and useful lives. In some instances, the children have written, and from the tone of their letters, we feel satisfied that they are doing well. Several little ones from the nursery, have been adopted, and have received the family name of those by whom they have been taken. Their photographs have been sent back to the Home in many cases, and from the happy faces in the pictures, we receive indubitable proof that they have been welcomed into loving hearts and happy homes.

From the fact that we have changed matron and teachers during the past year, we find it almost impossible to state with desirable accuracy, the whole number of children who have been, during the entire year, under the care of this Association. Neither can we ascertain to the full extent, the number of garments which have been made up and given out by the managers. The following statement, being the returns handed in from each school, we believe to be accurate; but the account is not full. Some of the records having been lost, the Association is not accredited with its full amount of work.

More than one hundred thousand good and wholesome meals have been furnished to the children at these schools, this year. Even with these imperfect statistics, you will see that this work requires a well-filled treasury.

The expenses are necessarily heavy, but the outlay has been made in a judicious manner, and we have taken no step of importance without consulting the Advisory Committee.

Painting the exterior of the Home was a very expensive work, but one which was much needed, and could not be longer deferred. The improvement in the appearance of the building well repays the cost. Some interior alterations were deemed advisable, and others absolutely necessary, so that we have some very heavy bills on this account to meet. In the present state of our finances, these were not very welcome to our excellent Treasurer.

The expense of flagging and curbing the sidewalk and paving the street in front of the Home, and also an assessment for the paving of Park Place weigh heavily upon us, and we scarcely know how we shall, with these extra bills, meet the current expenses of the year.

We have received many individual acts of kindness during the past year; we should like to acknowledge them in this report, and thank the authors of such, warmly and cordially for their assistance, but we feel that in doing this we should not be acting in accordance with the wishes of these friends, who shrink from publicity given to their quiet deeds of charity.

We cannot, however, pass over in silence the gifts of children, for we believe they need the encouragement which the recognition and acknowledgment of their generosity may give.

Some little girls, Misses Hunt, Robinson and Woodruff, held among themselves a fair for the benefit of this Association. Their little fingers worked industriously, and perhaps their sweet pleading faces accomplished still more, and from the result of their sales they realized $65, which they exultingly handed over into our Treasury.

Ten little girls from the Reformed Church, Flatbush, have agreed to support a child in the Home for six months. We wish that similar circles of little girls might be formed in other churches for this same purpose.

The following letter, with the gifts to which it refers, was received from a child living in Clinton Street :

"To the Matron of the Home for Destitute Children: I am a little girl eight years old, and I expect to have presents on Christmas, and I have a great many books now, and so my sister Maime and I have sent you a package of books, and a few toys and two dolls. My Mamma has put in some dresses that we do not wear any more. On Christmas, I want you to give these things to the little girls that have no books and toys. A. B." The child-like simplicity and sweetness of this letter was the temptation, and must be the excuse for laying it before you.

At Christmas, and also on Thanksgiving Day, the children at the Home, and in all the schools had an abundance of poultry supplied for their dinner. They also received very acceptable gifts of toys, cakes, apples and oranges.

The children at the Home had a particularly happy season at Christmas, for they were provided through the generosity of the Matron with a handsome Christmas tree, laden with toys, and not one child in the building but was made happy with some new treasure.

During the last annual fair the managers received many very acceptable gifts which they endeavored to acknowledge at that time. Should these notes of acknowledgment have been in some cases lost, and in others misdirected, the managers hope that their friends will impute the inadvertency to the haste and bustle consequent upon such large fairs, and not to any want of gratitude or lack of appreciation.

After the close of the Fair, an entertainment was given by Mr. J. F. Hager, for the benefit of this Association, from which was realized the sum of more than six hundred dollars, ($600.)

The managers desire to express their thanks to this gentleman, and to all who volunteered to assist him upon that occasion for this sum which they were the means of placing in our Treasury.

Thus we go on with our work from year to year, feeling that we have had more or less success, and never without some evidence of progress. Like all workers in this field, we have much to contend against. Intemperance and ignorance on the part of some parents, give us more trouble than insubordination among the children. Hereditary evil sometimes stains the purity of even the youngest, and in weakness and disease, the sins of the parents are visited upon the children. In such cases we can only pity, we cannot relieve.

We must give our testimony in behalf of those who are pleading for the cause of temperance in this city. We believe that were it not for rum-selling and rum-drinking, there would be little, if any, need for our Industrial Schools. It is that, which unfits the parents for labor, takes the clothes from the children, and makes them fit objects for our charity.

We do not seek for appreciation of this work from the poor and ignorant, although we value it when it comes, as it often does, from this source, but we long for more heartfelt co-operation from the churches. Our managers represent every denomination, and nearly every church in the city, and yet we feel almost discouraged by the great lack of interest in this work. Vainly we lay on your tables our yearly report; vainly the managers point out the objects, aim and necessity of the work. The congregations contribute largely to our support, but christian friends do not visit the Schools and Homes, and inform themselves of what we are doing, by coming in personal contact with the children. We are so human, so dependent upon sympathy that we long to have others show a personal interest in this work which interests us so much. We feel that it would be well did our christian friends come oftener to the Home and to the Schools, and see the children, and speak kind loving words to them, and lay a caressing hand upon their little heads. But this is so rarely done that we almost cease to expect it.

God speaks to us in the bright and loving faces of those who with all the confidence of childhood lean upon us for protection. He speaks to us in the pleading of every homeless child, in the cry of every motherless one, in the helplessness of the unprotected-ed who are brought to our door. We cannot turn away from them. St. Christopher bore across the river the child who lifted up its pleading hands to him, but when he placed his burden down on the other side, behold! it was Christ! In bearing up these little ones over the sweeping tide of poverty and sin that rushes like a river through our city, we hear Christ saying to us: "Ye have done it unto me."

When we see such extravagance among the wealthy, such useless expenditure of money upon selfish pleasures, and the taste for expensive dress among the women of our country, and then turn to these gaunt hungry children of the poor, hungry as to heart, soul, and physical need, when we see their thin arms raised for help, when we look upon the bleached faces that come up from dark cellars, and the sad eyes that lack the lustre of childhood, we feel like crying out to you: Oh! sisters, how can ye meet all these in judgment? What can you reply when the Saviour shall say to you: "I was hungry and ye gave me no meat, I was thirsty and ye gave me no drink!"

A celebrated preacher once said that there was a great lesson to be learned from the example of the prophet Elisha. When he sent his staff to be laid by his servant, upon the dead child of the Shunnamite woman, there was "neither voice nor hearing;" but when he placed his mouth upon the child's mouth, and his eyes upon the child's eyes, then the child showed signs of life. There are many now, who only send a staff by the hands of others; but let them come and meet the children hand to hand, and face to face, and they will find a new life and an awakened energy breathed into this work.
